John,
I'm really happy to have you as a friend & a special "cookie" Remember all the good times we have had at the pizza King. Bud, the double-uglies, uncle Bob, and all of our other friends. whoops! I forgot one! --- the SOW! and Elaine. I hope you and Elaine come back next summer, and we'll have a blast all over again. Have fun the rest of this high School year, it'll go fast. Get all out of it that you can. Don't feel bad if you will feel like crying I guess its only natural Good luck in everything you do, and I hope you succeed in anything you set out to try.

Love

"What life means to us is determined not so much by what happens to us as by our reaction to what happens."

from September to June
we party and laugh,
we giggle with embarrassment,
we study, we cry.
but it isn't just another year of mediocre "little" things.
instead, a year of major events.
each event startles us into a new consciousness.
we are stung by the implications of the Watergate scandal, the neglect and thoughtlessness that led to the energy crisis, the gunfire conflicts that continue in the Middle East, in Ireland, on American city streets.
and we live in the hope that "peace with honor" is more than a pipe dream, that we, as a people, may come to a better understanding with the peoples of other countries.
we become concerned with these problems not because of their effects on the masses, but because of the effects on each of us as individuals.
we are becoming the voters, politicians,
soldiers, and workers involved in these conflicts.
and we are just now beginning to feel the Impact.

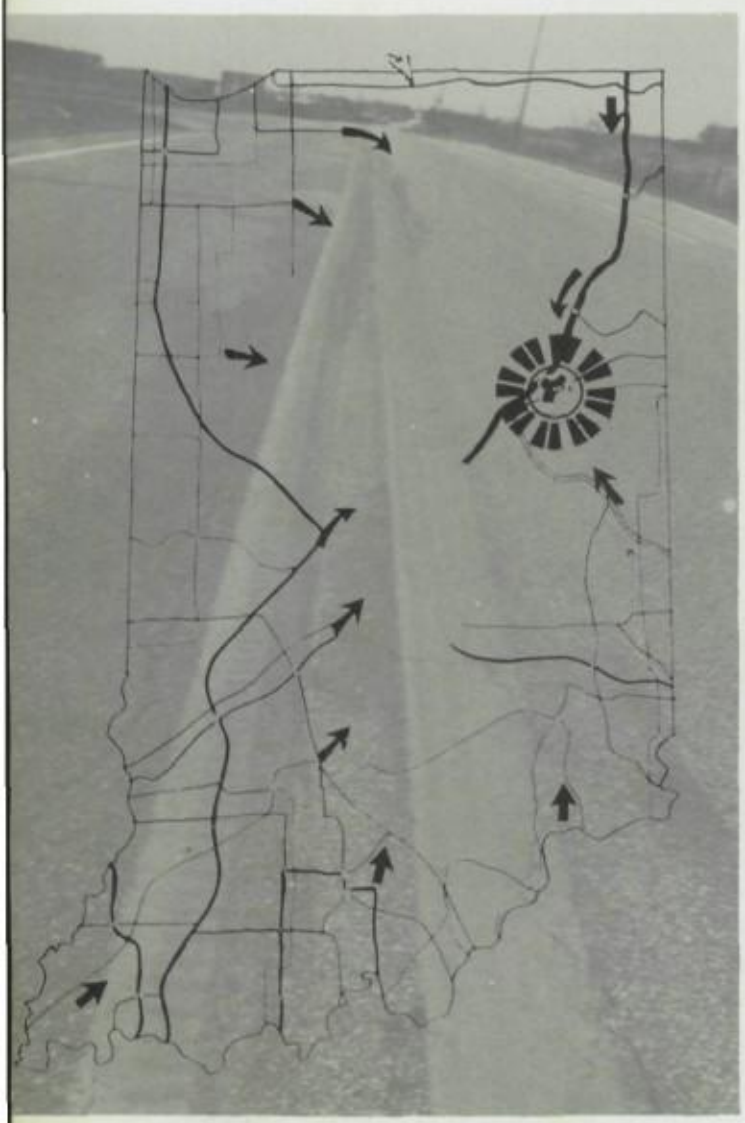
COMING HOME



Clowning inspired the creative genius (above) of seniors Marlene Walker and Anita Sanders, building an Apache for the winning float, "Apache Sings the Blues." Topping off Lisa's night (below) were congrats from Mom and Dad.

Returning BHS grads were welcomed by a spirited Bruin Homecoming. Festivities broke out a full week before the game. The key word for Spirit Week: Competition. Tug-of-War preliminaries touched off "Sneak-up-on-Apache Day," "Roll-'em-and-Mix-'em Day," "Movies Day," "Keep-on-Truckin'-and-Stompin' Day" . . . with students costumed to fit the theme of each day. Friday marked the traditional red-white-and-black "Bruin Day." At the pep session, juniors proved their strength in the final Tug-of-War; Art Club stole top honors in the sign contest; the Senior Class captured the first Homecoming Float Contest. Later that night, alumni and other Bruin fans united to cheer the football team to victory over Wabash. Half-time spotlighted the newly-crowned Homecoming Queen and her court. Finally, a post-game dance featured the music of All-Spice Rock. While old grads reminisced, '73 students created memories for tomorrow.

Fashions with fun harmonized in Bruin trends

Despite the busy and sometimes turbulent life of students, dress continued to be comfortable and casual.

For the guys there were cuffed baggied pants, short-ribbed shirts, platform shoes, leather bracelets letter sweaters. Hair was long, shaggy, frizzed-out, smothered by a cap. Mustaches grew popular.

Girls tried short jackets and sweaters over cuffed baggies and flared skirts. Long hooded coats, cropped furry jackets with tight knitted caps kept out winter cold. Platforms and saddle oxfords, tooled leather and denim purses, and plaids also came to school. Haircuts were short, with emphasis on curls.

Casual attitudes were also reflected in vague phrases of conversation. Talk ranged from pizza to the occult with typical comments of "I mean you know," "well, uh . . .," "I don't even care," and the sympathetic "Really?"

Let the Show Go On

From concert to play to parade, students and teachers were excited by a variety of performances. Staging the plays produced tension for actors and crews but proved satisfying as the final result was shared with an audience. Band and Choir students received a different satisfaction through concerts. Music nudged these audiences from mood to mood, soothing and upsetting. Cheerleaders interrupted ball games for a spirited show of stunts. Majorettes put on a show, smiling and kicking at pep sessions and parades. Students entertained again and again throughout the year. They experienced the boredom of endless rehearsals, the frustration of postponement, and panic before facing an audience. Yet, after all the worries and hassles, each performer felt an individual satisfaction of sharing something personal with an audience.

but snow and sleet did provide brief vacations

Snow, sleet, and fog broke up winter monotony with a change of scenery and unexpected vacations from school. Administrators decided to close schools no fewer than six times because of slick roads, accumulating snow, and poor visibility. Students put the free time to "good" use as they caught up on sleep, daytime soap operas, game shows and snowmobiling. However, the icy roads caused headaches for some when hazardous driving conditions postponed the Snowman's Ball, Lettermen's Club initiation, and — twice — the Pops Party Concert.

Accumulating snows transformed the Blackford campus into mountains of white, and few students — or teachers — were disappointed with the early morning "No School" announcements.

Modern and fresh ideas went into "Colour My World" for the 1974 prom.

Juniors decorated with geometric designs and pastel spring colors, as well as silver. The entrance was all black and white to contrast the colorful gym. Lighting reflected the theme in the gym, as colored lights were used.

Highlighting the evening was the grand march and queen crowning. Paula Holloway was voted queen by her classmates, and her court was Cindy Bowman, Brenda Dickey, Annette Ervin, and Cheryl Weatherholt.

After a change into more comfortable clothes, students danced through the night to the sounds of "Hoochie," and then ate breakfast at the 4-H building.

Juniors' prom ideas

Enjoyment of life in an informal setting was seen in and out of school. FFA members Nancy Schermerhorn and Keith Cates sampled tasty home cooking at carry-in banquet (top left) while Dogpatch King Rick Sutton boogied (top right) to "Sadies" music. Outside school boundaries, John Kendrick (above) relieved tension at Montpelier Jamboree "demolition," and overseas exchange student Ken Jones and friends visited Berlin (right).

Students found all kinds of excuses to have fun. The Montpelier Jamboree offered a beauty contest, a parade, and an old car to whack away at — 50 cents a slug. Open House acquainted the public with Blackford's classroom happenings as students' demonstrations ranged from macrame to physics experiments. The annual Football Party completed the newspaper subscription drive with publications people squashing beginning journalists students. Pub people celebrated again with cakes as the Bruinformer was named NSPA All-American and CSPA Medalist. Booster Club sponsored the Sadie Hawkins Dance for hayseeds and an after-game dance for basketball fans. Spirited Booster Club members formed gangs to decorate the halls for spirit weeks. Masque and Gavel served the Homecoming Pep Breakfast. FFA feasted at a banquet. French Clubbers partied with guest of honor from Ball State — a native of France. Get-togethers were loosely planned and spontaneous. But each gave kids a chance to laugh, mess around, and share a good time.

A get-together (for nearly any purpose) usually meant fun in a variety of ways. Pubbers (top) celebrated their annual victory over beginning journalists. Miss Fee treated French Club guest Paul Lehahey (top left) to an American favorite. Discovering more than two hands are needed for macrame, Tony Tignor (upper left) demonstrated for Open House display. Occasional work accompanied playtime as Boosters Cathy Abbott, Cindy Moriarity, Brian Everhart and Steve Taylor draped halls with red-white-and-black Bruin banners (left).

Mixed emotions gripped Nancy Sumwalt (above), as hope, despair, and joy prevailed while she watched her beloved Bruin team. Spirit Week sported dress of the fifties and decorated doors (right).

Bruin fans boosted school spirit through organized pep sessions, spirit weeks, and decorated halls.

At pep sessions students screeched and stomped to show they were "all fired up!" Tug of war proved class strength. Classes fought for spirit sticks in class competition.

Individuals were awarded spirit sticks for the first time. Coaches talked with the student body and recognized individual team members.

Mrs. Knote's spirit jug spilled "Go-o-o-o Power!" into student roars. Cheerleaders led with "Two-Bits" and "Good luck."

Spirit Week costumes were popular with themes of farmers, backwards, stomp 'em, fifties, movies, sneak-up-on-'em, and the traditional red-white-and-black Bruin day. Booster Clubbers and other students hung streamers down the halls, taped signs on the walls, and stairways, and dressed up classroom doors and team members lockers. Spirit meant involved, and Bruin backers showed their spirit.

SPORTING THE SPIRIT!

Comedy was in store for audiences of the fall play, Plaza Suite, when a bride-to-be locked herself in the bathroom on her wedding day. From pleading on bended knee (lower right) to threatening to break down the door (above) Sherri Morris and Ed Thurman portrayed the bride's anxious parents.

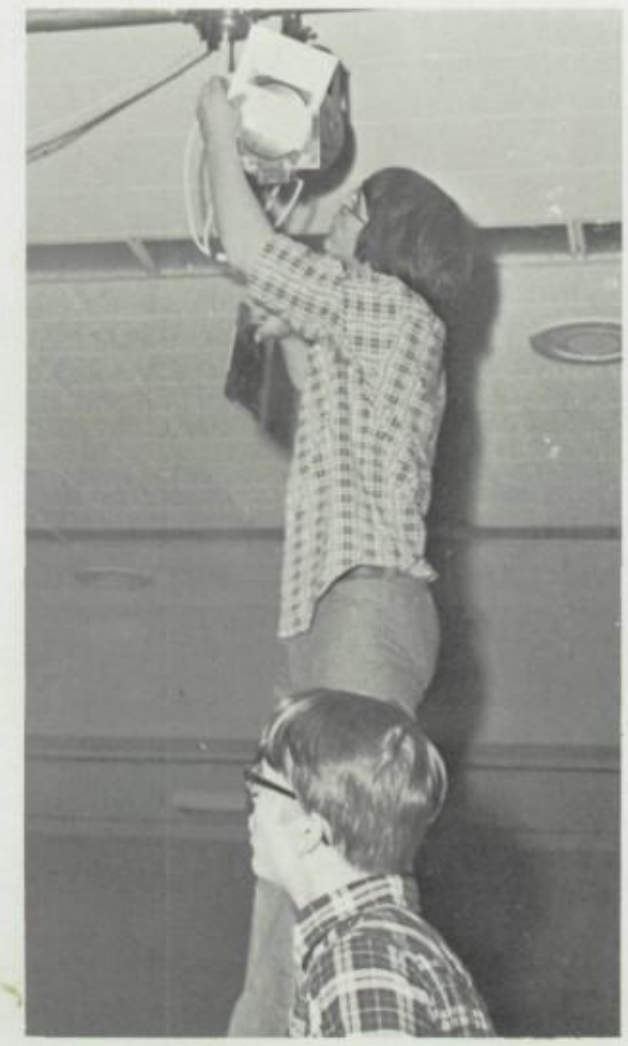
Crew members were an essential part in creating the proper atmosphere for productions. Behind the scenes, John George and Dave Hamilton check the lights.



Lights! This word was the signal to begin their roles. Twenty-one students participated in Masque and Gavel's fall and spring productions. Ranging from the hilarious comedy, Plaza Suite, directed by Mrs. Donna Haviland, to the emotional drama, David and Lisa, directed by Ms. Debi Carnefix, students experienced two extremes of drama.

Plaza Suite was two hilarious episodes of true-to-life conflicts. Sam Nash (Byron Kasier) and Karen Nash (Cris Smelser) quarreled over Sam's need to appeal to younger women. Then, Act II found Norma Hubley (Sherri Morris) and Roy Hubley (Ed Thurman) on their daughter's wedding day desperately trying to dispel her fears and remove her form the barricaded bathroom to the wedding aisle.

On the other hand, David and Lisa demanded of its characters the emotional build of mentally disturbed young people. Dana Boxell, as Lisa, spent hours reviewing the hcildhood pastime of skipping while speaking in tongue-twisting rhyme. Byron Kaiser, though, portrayed a character extremely opposite. Brushing up on a meticulous pronunciation of words and learning to move with an unnatural stiffness, he became the character David.

Many hours of preparation were spent by production crews and casts.

"Take my hand, Lisa," pleads David (Byron Kaiser, left) as the two endeavor to overcome their mental disturbances.

Creative Crafts

An estimated 1,000 people, not including students, viewed the May Fine and Applied Arts Show. The exhibit displayed the talents of students from the Art, Home Ec., and Industrial Arts Departments.

Rick Rader's sculpture entitled "I'm really stuffed" received the Best of the Show award. Art students sold approximately $100 worth of items to the public, with Dave Coons and Kenny Ramsey being high salesmen.

Clothing, food, stationery, and other craft items were displayed by the Home Ec students. Detailed drawings along with tables, chests, and cabinets were shown in the Industrial Arts section.

Let Them Entertain You

Providing entertainment for the students' convocations gave a break in the daily routine of school. The first convocation, sponsored by the Student Council, featured O. G. Fitzgerald, memory expert. Mr. Fitzgerald gave students tips on remembering names of students in a psychology class whom he had met earlier. Symphonic, Concert, and Stage bands presented a convocation with selections from the cancelled Pops Party Concert. The concert had been cancelled because of bad weather. Les Walthens and his family, acrobats, demonstrated the skill of balance and coordination essential in acrobatics. The ISU band, on tour, entertained the student body with selections from their concert and marching seasons. Johnny Parsons Jr., race driver, encouraged students to drive carefully and defensively. Mr. Parsons showed a film of the qulifications at Indianapolis 500 mile race.

TRIPS

School-connected activities encouraged travel — for field trips and fun. Art Club and Science Club explored museums in Chicago. Speech and Debate teams competed weekly in area tournaments. Band members played at East Noble and New Haven, while Choir students competed at New Haven and Fort Wayne. Lisa Lefevre was chosen to spend a week-end at Butler U. for All-State Band. Modern Dance Club saw practice and exhibitions at Ball State. Basketball regionals at Anderson drew busloads of fans. Wrestlers tangled at Fort Wayne. Gary Crabtree placed in state diving finals at Ball State. Gymnasts rode to Indianapolis for the state meet. Three art students received coveted Gold Key Awards when their works were selected for national competition. Senior Government students traveled to Indianapolis for lectures on current events and to hear Walter Cronkite. Several students and teachers visited England during Christmas holidays. Dozens spent spring vacation tanning on Florida beaches. Ken Jones exchanged families with Matthais Teipel to spend his senior year in Germany. Another exchange student, Flavio Rodrigues Cysneriros, came from Brazil to spend the year. Each trip offered the fun of new experiences, since it broke school routine for encounters with strange ideas an different types of people.

Accepting honors kept Bruins moving. Selected for All-State Band, Lisa Lefevre (above) prepared music for the week-end rehearsals and concert at Butler University. Traveling to Indianapolis, art students Debby McCollum and Susan Johnson (right) received Gold Key Awards.

Lazy summer months easily gave way to diverse learning experiences — from athletics to academics to the practical.

Girls' softball and Babe Ruth teams burned up sticky summer days. While cyclists and swimmers soaked in the sun, ambitious students took off for workshops, focused on debate tactics, journalism techniques, chemistry theories, and band camp drills. Boys' and Girls' State participants learned by campaigning in mythical cities. Short trips were popular, just for the fun of it, with de Cycles crossing the country, others heading for Mexico, Germany, or the lakes. To cover expenses, students eagerly put in hours at the swimming pool, McCord's, and local Dairy Queens. In summer government class, a dark-horse candidate captured mock-elections. Jittery driver-ed students mastered the arts of power steering and parallel parking. Experiences varied, yet "summer vacation" was an "education" in itself for every individual.

Not all of the time in school was spent in a classroom. Some of it was "free." Homeroom period was filled with various club meetings, study, or talk. Breaks between classes gave a chance to walk with a friend and break up classroom routine. Even some of the classes themselves helped relieve textbook monotony: work-outs in phys. ed., practices for marching band and choir, individual projects for art, home-ec, and industrial arts. Occasional pep sessions and convocations also helped. But the biggest block of time was the lunch hour — waiting in line for "Type-A," killing time at the book-store, loafing at the jukebox, playing basketball in the gym, waiting for a teacher. Although this was "free" time, students were usually confined to the gym. Sometimes it was fun, but the lines and the waiting led to pure bore-dom.

The half-hour lunch break left a limited amount of time for after-lunch activities. Waiting for their fourth-hour teacher to call a return to class, many noontimers (left) succumbed to boredom or caught up on the latest school news. For other after-lunch diversion Joe Everett and pubbers (above) enjoyed a supplement to Type-A — birthday cake.

With the hysteria of a basketball game over for another night, Pep Club President Pam Hogan (center), doubled as a waitress, serving Paula Townsend and Elizabeth Smith. On another work program, Joe Holloway (right) spent one period a day working in the Audio-Visual department.

Responsibility. It comes with the realization that you are providing a service and someone is depending on you. BHS students learned this in varying degrees as they took on a variety of jobs. Over 60 helped out at school: in the library, bookstore, Paperback Peddler, AV, Athletic Director's Office, ticket booths, Guidance Office, cafeteria, and after school as janitors. Distributive Education enabled many to work as part of their education. Seniors were able to attend required classes for graduation and be released for work. Part-time jobs provided an extra dimension to student life. Some worked for pocket money, to fill spare time, to help with college tuition, or to learn first-hand about job opportunities. The added bonus came in learning the value of money, the importance of pride in one's work, and the practical aspects of responsibility.

As the holiday season drew near, Sears' employee Tim Ramey (top) stocked shelves with the latest Christmas toys. Working for spending money for an upcoming trip to England, Carey Crimmel (above) put in hours after school at the Robo Car Wash.

Imaginations sparked

Size, not number of cars, was affected by energy shortage as BHS

Fords, Chevies, Pontiacs, Plymouths . . . despite the threatening gas shortage, over two hundred continued to drive to school.

With consideration for the energy crisis, some students formed car-pools to cut down on gas. Another outcome of the fuel shortage was the trend toward smaller cars with better gas mileage.

Most students, however, crowded into the familiar yellow buses. Some packed three-to-a-seat, some endured jostling high-strung grade-schoolers, some stumbled over bulky band instruments, and some tried to study.

Although the masses rode buses and cars, there were several motorcycles, and a few tried something different. For health or ecology: biking and walking.

Living close to the school proves advantageous to Penny and Jenny Barkdull (above right) as they practice a personal solution to the energy crisis. Motorcycles use less gas than cars, so Brad Williams gets his cycle in top shape for miles of riding (right).

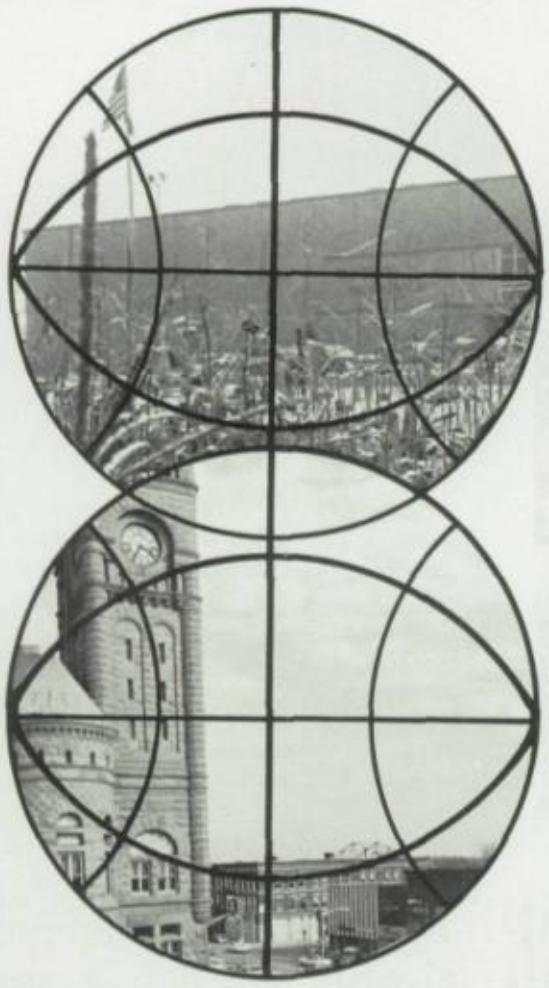
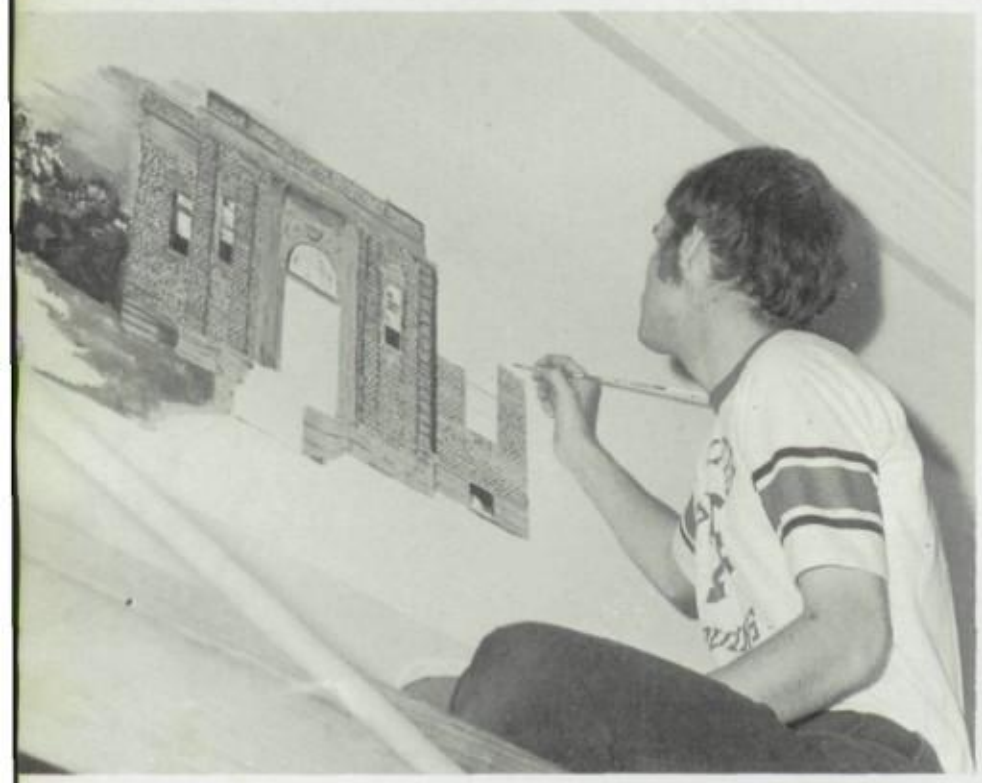
Citizens of two worlds



Blackford students cared. They reached out to help in many areas of community life. The Ecology Club and local Boy Scouts each sponsored clean-ups, concentrating on county roads. Tri-Hi-Y partied and fed local Headstart youngsters. Gold Teens visited and entertained residents of Willow Hall Nursing Home. Publications held a Christmas Penny Pitch to provide baskets of food and toys for needy families. Young Republicans and Democrats worked for representation in local party politics. One student painted a mural for the Hartford City Public Library. Another represented youth on the Board of Directors of the "Dollars for Scholars" program which enabled students to continue their education. Many high school students were aware of community needs. They not only recognized the problems of people but also responded concretely.



Helping the community in any way possible required giving on the part of BHS students. Janabeth Lee (top) took time to extend friendship to a Headstart child at the Tri-Hi-Y sponsored dinner. Expressing the history of the county through art, Dave Thornburg (above) painted a mural at the Hartford City Public Library. Ken Montgomery (right) lay patiently while giving blood.

Interest in community affairs involvement as BHS students (below) joined the ranks in a growing concern through the Teens Against Cancer organization. With over $350 raised by the two-penny pitch, gifts were bought and delivered to a needy family by Phil Tatman and Tom Stepp (left). Giving of his talents, Kevin Simmons (below left) provided music for Rotary events.

Although BHS students may seem to be isolated in a rural community, they were affected by the same political events, entertainment, and publications affecting the rest of the country. Talk continued of the Watergate scandal as a special committee considered the impeachment of the President. Spiro Agnew resigned from the Vice-Presidency and was replaced by Gerald Ford. The predicted energy crisis became more pronounced: the price of gas rose 15 cents a gallon. Ecology movements continued with local club projects. Inflation cut into student budgets. Student support across the country made "streaking" a new national pastime. Government students learned to prepare income taxes and talked of current events. Elections grew more important to seniors and to several juniors who registered to vote for the first time. At local movie theaters, students questioned The Exorcist, laughed at The Sting, and were moved by The Way We Were. Interest resumed in Go Ask Alice and Catcher in the Rye when local individuals fought unsuccessfully to remove these books from the school library. Rock fans listened to everything from the Carpenters to Deep Purple and Alice Cooper. Television introduced "Happy Days" with 50's days nostalgia, exaggerated "Kung Fu" philosophy, and Euell Gibbons as a "back-to-nature" health foods freak. Blackford students were far from isolated; national happenings caused local controversies, shared ideas, and entertainment.

On May 26, seniors collected for the traditional commencement exercises. Grouped together for the last time, white-robed graduates considered advice on coping with the life to come and reflected on the experiences they enjoyed during high school.

Although diplomas cut off ties with high school experiences, they also carried hope for the future. Graduates reminisced, but they also realized that this marked a time to plan for a new life.

In his valedictory, LeRoy Robbins stressed the importance of being satisfied with oneself as a person. Reverend E.W. Morack talked of understanding and respect, as he urged seniors and guests to recognize other persons as individuals.

With these thoughts in mind, seniors graduated with a look ahead to future challenges.

Science, math students in competition

One hundred seven students put their mathematical skills to the test by taking the National Math Test. LeRoy Robbins took top honors, followed by Howard Green and Jim Bradfield. Their scores were combined for Blackford's team score, which was to be entered in national competition.

Taylor University was the site of a mathematical field day for area high schools. Four juniors enrolled in senior math — Larry Stover, Paul Johnson, Jonathan Uncapher, and Howard Green — represented BHS.

Blue ribbon winners at the local Science Fair were Tim Vought and Kathy Sills. Kathy went on to take first in the Behavioral Science Division at the Regional held at Ball State University. Kathy found, in her project, the sense of smell better in girls than in boys. Science classes had a quadrant study in the woods, and a physiology unit in the pool.

A visit to the Ball State University observatory and the annual popcorn sale were Science Club projects. A spaghetti supper was also held.

FFA held a second annual Parent-Member banquet in connection with FFA week. Members attended contests and sold 500 boxes of grapefruit at Easter.

LEARNING TO EARN $

Careers, contests were their priorities

Students found both courses and clubs to prepare them for careers.

Sixteen Distributive Education seniors were employed at businesses, learning while still gaining a paycheck. A DE candy sale also grossed $2850, with Debbie Atkinson as top salesman. The DE Club filled parking meters with club and merchants' money for a special business day and won awards in district contests.

More than 10 students explored careers in teaching, participating in classroom responsibilities in county schools. The Future Teachers of America worked under a new sponsor, Mrs. Claudia Goodnight.

Four girls won Regional honors to advance to state in the district Office Education Association contest. The girls also sold Christmas plaques.

Approximately 15% of BHS students responded to a survey on curriculum by the guidance office to determine new course interests. The office aided students in college enrollment, and the 43 non-college students who enrolled in Career School.

Work, fun and experience combined to form career education programs. For fun, there was a moment of "toasting" the successful OEA candle sale (upper left), by Nancy Wrightsman, Janet Loveless and Randy Stoner. Experience, too, was gained as shown by Exploratory Teacher Richard Reasoner demonstrating to fifth graders (top center). DE offered Wally Everhart (right) learning — with a paycheck — at Bandag. But the fundamental pre-career learning was still in such classrooms as that of Mrs. Claudia Goodnight (upper right center), teaching shorthand to Esther Stanley.

Breaking the routine of preparing for careers were contests, tests, and team-support projects. For example, FTA members Emma Dodds, Linda Beach, Linette Pethtel, Richard Reasoner and Debbie McCollum boosted the Bruins with a sign (upper right). Aptitude tests were administered by Head Guidance Counselor James Landis (lower left), and OEA District awardees Nancy Wrightsman, Joni Poulson, Lois Nottingham, and Candy Runyon displayed their "loot" (lower right). District DE awards were given in ceremony to Nicki Constable and Cheryl Moorman, announced by Mr. Wey (center).

P.E. added activity, stressed pool work

Students developed their muscles not only in the gym, but also at a bowling alley, on a golf course, and in the pool. PE people were pretested. Then the class was divided into three skill levels, each spending six weeks in the pool. A new dimension was added to the Gymnastics class with the introduction of modern dance. This class attended a modern dance demonstration at Ball State.

Extramural and intramural sports provided GAA members competition with area schools and fun and recreation with friends. Other activities included a candle sale, the sponsoring of the Homecoming Powder Puff football game, and the coat check during basketball games.

Both Lettermen and BBC assisted at sport events. Lettermen sold pens with the football schedule on them and ushered at games. BBC activities included serving at CIC banquets, timing at swim and track meets, and selling tickets.

Frequent after-school matches were conducted by members of the Chess Club. The fairly new organization also planned an invitational chess tournament to match wits and strategies with other chess enthusiasts.

His strategy paying off, Bruce Coulson moves against Dan Cooley, while Dan surveys his predicament. Both are Chess Club members.

After-class activities were satisfying and entertaining. Julia Reidy (top) is having as much fun as the kids at a Tri-Hi-Y party for Headstart children. Too busy eating to talk, Hi-Y members (above) Paul Kemps, Larry Stover, Rick Twibell, Kent Willmann, and Ken Hunter enjoy pizza at a meeting.

Visits by state and national government representatives gave BHS students insights into the present political picture. State Representative Jeff Espich explained his duties and some of the procedures of the House. Timely issues such as the energy crisis were discussed.

Cameras accompanied U.S. Congressman David Dennis. Camera crews filmed footage for possible use in a segment of the TV show, 60 Minutes. Congressman Dennis, a member of the committee investigating evidence for Presidential impeachment, talked mainly on this issue and answered questions from students.

Eight students and two teachers attended National Leadership Day at Brownsburg High School. The event, sponsored by Senator Birch Bayh, featured newscaster Walter Cronkite.

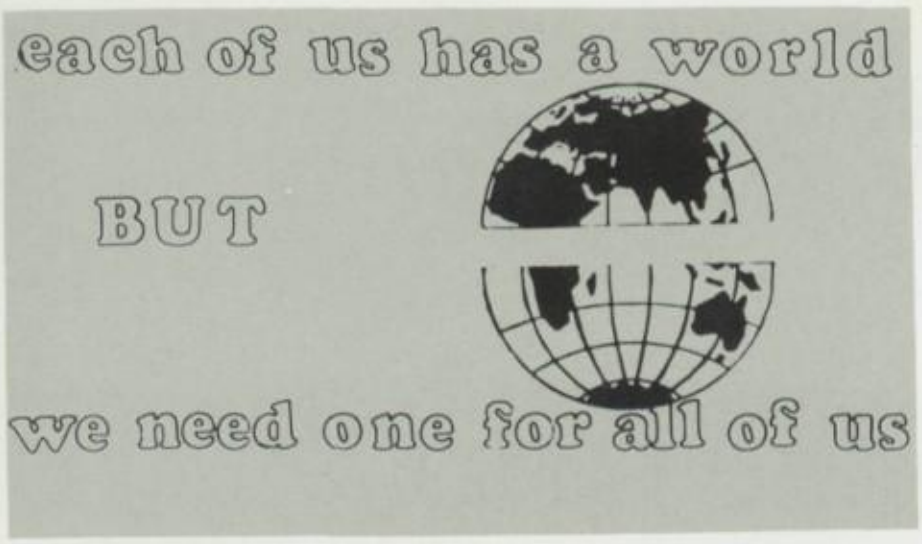
Activities of clubs helped broaden horizons in our own private world. Students became more aware of themselves and others and their ideas.

Mini-course day was again sponsored by Student Council. A variety of classes was offered. "Snowman's Ball" was the theme of their holiday dance. Representatives also sold school sweatshirts and helped at an open house.

Just missing National Debate Convention qualification was the team of Bob Beymer and Howard Green. They finished with the best-ever BHS debate record. The Brian Trauring-Tracy Warner team was chosen one of the top 12 teams in the state. Bruce Coulson also qualified for the state student congress finals in the Senate.

Sounds of "Farmer in the Dell" and "Hokey Pokey" were heard when Tri-Hi-Y entertained Headstart children. Members also sang Christmas carols at Willow Hall Nursing Home. Hi-Y boys enjoyed themselves with a night of fun and pizza.

Speakers added interest to Social Studies



New items acquired by Language Arts

New teachers, new books, and a new course appeared in Language Arts Department classes. Mrs. Peg Walters was hired as the first full-term reading teacher to supervise the reading lab. Mrs. Beth Karjula was another new English teacher.

All English classes used the lab at least one semester. Equipment available included listen-and-read tapes, word-clue workbooks, Flash-X cards, skimming machines, and a listening post.

Textbooks introduced this year included Adventures in American Literature and Lively Art of Writing. A Mass Communications course, taught by Ms. Debi Carnefix, was also introduced.

Bulletin board displays for community locations were designed by the Library Club. They were put in the Blackford County Hospital and Willow Hall Nursing Home.

Masque & Gavel's main project was the sponsoring of the plays. Plaza Suite and David and Lisa were presented. A stationery sale was also held.

Numerous tournaments were attended by speech team members along with Coach Donna Haviland. Three placed in NFL State Contests. At the regional level, Jan Garrett was fifth, Ed Thurman third, and Brain Trauring finished second. Ed went on to place first at the state level in broadcasting.

The Abraxas was published by National Honor Society. The literary magazine featured both literary and art contributions from many students.

They prepared to build homes, products

Tools for tasks performed by both men and women became familiar to students in industrial arts and home economics.

New courses and equipment were introduced into the Home Economics Department. Three new courses — World of Work, Consumer Education, and Interpersonal Relations — were added. Ninteen sewing machines and an electronic oven lent by the Indiana and Michigan Electric Company were added.

Printing classes kept busy producing the "Monthly Moth," a department newsletter, and doing work for school and community functions. Other Industrial Arts classes such as Mechanical Drawing and Power and Transportation added possibilities to the futures of students. Forty-eight students attended the Muncie and Marion Vocational schools, compared to 20 last year.

"Exit: Apathy, and Enter: Encounter" was the theme the state and national Future Homemakers of America. FHA planned three projects — on self-defense, safety belts, and medicine quakery. "Holiday on Ice" in Fort Wayne was attended and a Wandering Wheels program held.

A Spring Carnival was planned by the new Industrial Arts Club, and a car rally sponsored to make driving more efficient.

Exhibits brightened routine and halls

SELF-EXPRESSION

Works of art students were continually displayed in the cafeteria hallway, providing BHS with its own art gallery. The displays illustrated the wide variety of individual interests.

Firing of ceramics by bonfire and field trips gave periodic breaks to their routine. Field trips included traveling to the Indianapolis Museum of Art in the fall and seeing Ball State's Small Sculpture and Drawing Show in the spring.

Art Club's annual candy sale provided funds for peacock looms, a potter's wheel, and professional works. It also helped finance a spring trip to Detroit.

A wide range of exhibits was also sponsored. The Blackford Faculty Art Show and Scholastic Art Awards were among others. The year was climaxed with the Fine and Applied Art Show in May.

Senior Ron Bell won second place in the Tri Kappa Art Scholarship Contest. He received $400 to further his art education at a college of his choice.

Finished pieces appeared after step-by-step progress: Creating a pot (above) on the potter's wheel bought by Art Club is Ken Ramsey. Ed Burton (right) inspects cloth after dyeing.

Observation of others often provided new techniques and sparked new ideas. Picking up possible ideas, Ron Bell (top) *studies national photo winners in an Art Club exhibit. Languages came from books, guests Besides having a reigning club queen and king, French Club members had as guest speaker a Ball State student-Frenchman, Mr. Paul Lehaany. French classes also used games and tapes.

"Octoberfest" was observed by German Club with a scavenger hunt. Authentic German sausage was served and three German women taught the Polka.

Mrs. Ofelia Burton's Spanish classes were introduced to a new method in learning the language (Spanish for Communication) in which daily lessons were presented like drama scripts. Recordings gave instructions. The plan allowed more teacher time for individual help.

Latin Club and classes also observed the Ides of March by wearing black carnations, proving a dead language can live again.

Adding to the insight of all language students were two exchange students — Matthias Tiepel, Germany, and Flavio Rodrigues Cysneriros, Brazil.

Classes, clubs, and exchange students helped students learn more about the world. Clubs' members honored by banquets

Dedication was needed for gaining membership in Honor Society, Quill & Scroll, Thespians, BBC, NFL, and Lettermen's Club. Members often spent extra hours at activities which made them eligible for membership. Work didn't go unrewarded. Athletes were honored at the athletic banquets along with BBC members.

Thespians' work was appreciated by audiences at Plaza Suite and David and Lisa. Other Thespians didn't appear on stage, but worked behind the scenes. NFL members spent many week-ends in speech or debate competition, combining competition and fun.

Initiations and award presentations were held for Quill & Scroll at the Publications Banquet. Recognition was given to seniors and those doing outstanding work. NHS held spring and fall initiations for new people. In the spring, a carry-in dinner was held, featuring a Faculty Choir.

music department's MUSICAL NOTES

Snow caused problems for music makers

Old man winter did his thing, with ice and snow bringing cancellations of Band and Choir performances.

Treacherous weather was behind two cancellations of the Band's Pops Party. The concert was given for the student body instead of the originally planned evening performance. Snow was again blamed for both postponements of the Chorale's Sacred Concert. The concert eventually took place at the Trinity Church.

Class time was primarily spent in readying for concerts and contests. Music History was another music-related class offered.

Swing Choir and Stage Band put in extra hours of practice and performance. Both performed for community organizations and functions on request. The Band and Chorale visited both county junior highs, hoping to keep early musical interest alive.

Two music students were chosen for All-State Groups. Lisa Lefevre played flute with the All-State Band, while Randy Cook sang with the All-State Choir.

First-Division ratings in the State Ensemble and Solo Contest were received by Cheryl Weatherholt, Lisa Leferve, Janet Garrett, Wanda Roberts, Jane Ann Chaney, Nancy Blount, and Ben Oswalt. Teri Barnes and Tracy Long also produced top ratings in the District Contest.

Band camp comes back into schedule

Band Camp was brought back into the schedule of Band members this year. Members journeyed to Manchester College, where they spent six days drilling and preparing for the coming year's marching season.

State Marching Contest was added this year with only bands receiving first division rating at the district marching contest eligible. This year's band brought home the school's fifth first division rating in the regional, with the theme of Rogers and Hart, and the third inspection trophy. The members placed third in the state event.

Both Symphonic and Concert Bands received first division ratings at the NISBOVA district contest. Stage Band also received a first at the state contest.

Sacred Concert adds new group

A new organization was added to the Choral Department this year, bringing the total members in vocal groups to 166. The Concert Choir, which is a mixed choir of sophomore members, replaced an all-girl choir called the Choraleers that performed in past years.

The weather-postponed Sacred Concert presented at the Trinity United Church was an accomplishment for the Chorale and Concert Choirs this year.

Both Boys and Girls Glee Clubs received first-division ratings at contest. Each choir was rated on its own merit and not be in compeition with other Freshman choirs participating. They were judged on intonation, tone quality, vocal techniques, music interpretation, and stage presentation. The Chorale and Concert Choirs also received first-division ratings and the Swing Choir received a second.

Swing Choir members sang at the Hartford City Junior High and Montpelier Middle Schools to give students an example of what goes on in the BHS Choral Department, and to persuade some of the undecided minds of eighth graders to join Freshman Glee Clubs.

"Drive" was the key word for Publications this year. Two subscription drives, a financial drive for charity, and the usual "drive" to meet deadlines dominated the Pub program.

A "2c pitch" for the purchase of gifts for a needy Blackford County family collected $350, through the efforts of "Santa" Tom Stepp.

Following the fall BruINformer subscription drive, staff members relaxed with a picnic and interstaff football game. But eventually came the work for both newspaper and yearbook staffs to meet deadlines and get publications out on time.

Seniors Vicky Gilland and Brian Trauring alternated as editors of the BruINformer. Editors featured a magazine layout in the fall. Jeff Fergus headed the '74 Reflection staff.

Honors included three top press association awards for the BruINformer and two out of three for the 1973 Reflections.

Gridders no. 2 in state AA competition

History was made as the Bruins of Head Coach Elden Leeth became the first athletic team from Blackford County ever to play in the final game of state playoffs. Based on the IHSAA point system, BHS earned the privilege to represent District 6 in the semi-final game against Wawasee. After winning this game, the team was declared Northern Indiana Football Champ, and was on its way to the Class AA state championship game against Greenfield's Cougars.

In the final game the Bruins overwhelmed the Cougars during the first quarter, as they scored touchdowns the first two times they had the ball, making the score 12-0 at the end of the period. The second quarter was a battle of the defense's until the 1:30 mark, when the Cougars put together a 79-yard drive, ending in a touchdown pass, making the halftime score 12-7. This last-second touchdown seemed to make the Cougars come alive, as they completely dominated the second half. On the second play of the second half, Greenfield recovered a Bruin fumble and proceeded to turn it into a touchdown. This, coupled with a fourth quarter 38-yard TD pass, put the game out of reach for the BHS team, and the contest ended with the Cougars leading 21 to 12.

Following the game, LeRoy Robbins was chosen recipient of the Mental Attitude Award, and each player was given a medal recognizing him as a member of the AA State Runner-Up team.

Post-game pep sessions were held in the gym following both games. A banquet was also held at the 4-H building congratulating the Bruins on a fine season.

Leethmen won CIC; had 9-3 record

After losing two of their first three games, who would have thought Coach Elden Leeth's Bruins would end up as CIC co-champions and state playoff runners-up?

The '73 season opened with Madison Heights. Newly added to make a stronger schedule, the Pirates proved too strong as they came out on top 33-25. Muncie South's Rebels provided no competition; the Bruins blasted them 27-0. The Elwood game went all the way to the wire, with the Panthers winning 21-20. A win over Tipton started an eight-game winning streak that did not end until the state championship game. Six CIC victories were recorded, allowing BHS to share the conference crown with Tipton.

A total of nine Bruins were selected for the all-conference team. First-team honors went to LeRoy Robbins, Dan Kilty, Bud Brown, and Bob Bowman. Vince Brown made the second team. Gary Denton, Steve Rinker, Jeff Parker, and Jeff Perry received honorable mention. Junior Bud Brown was also recognized as the Offensive Player of the Year. Coach Leeth was rewarded by being named CIC Coach of the Year.

JV explosive; Frosh had 3-3-1 record

Coaches Steve Jeffrey and Dick Dunkelbarger guided the Junior Varsity team to overwhelming success on several occasions, as they crushed such teams as Wabash, Bluffton, and Delta. All JV players were given plenty of playing time, as it was not uncommon for the coaches to have no more than 15 players dressed for a game. Leading the offensive charges were Larry Stover, Jim Payne, Craig Ford, and Ron Byard. The Cubs mixed a balanced rushing attack with occasional passes to Byard.

The Teddybears of Coaches Craig Moore and Ron Furniss had a record of three wins, three losses, and one tie. All Frosh games were close, as on only one occasion the difference in scores was more than one touchdown. Some especially exciting contests were the Huntington game, won by Huntington by the score of 15-14, and the Tipton game. The Tipton contest was a see-saw affair, with BHS coming out on top, 20-16. Leading Frosh scorers were Doug Strine and Tim Towne. Jeff Cole and Kenny Hummer played consistently well on defense.

Ehlers led harriers in record season

The '73 harriers, under the guidance of Coach Mark Crain, completed the school's best season ever. Their final record consisted of 11 wins and one loss. They also added their third consecutive first-place finish in the Burris Invitational and a second place in the CIC.

Bluffton was the first opponent the Bruins faced last year. The Tigers surprised the Bruins, beating them easily by the score of 20-40. This was the only defeat in dual meets that BHS would experience.

Senior Mike Ehlers was the number-one Bruin. His best time of the year was a respectable 12:54. He also established a new record in the CIC of 13:02 when he placed first in that meet. Other harriers who placed high in varsity competition were Paul Kemps, Kent Willman, Lawrence Cook, Chip Crimmel, Dave Kemps, and Mark Orr.

The always tough Junior Varsity team compiled a record of eight wins against one loss, thus giving Coach Crain plenty of encouraging prospects.

13-9 season exceeded 'building' prediction

Many Bruin backers thought it was going to be a dismal season for the roundballers. But Coach Jon Stroup would not let it happen, as he guided the team to a 16-9 record. Grant County Tourney and Sectional Championships were also recorded in what would be termed a building season.

The team had its ups and downs in the early part of the season. They won their first three games and then turned around to lose the next three. The Grant County Tourney, however, was the turning point for the determined Bruins, as they came out of it with a 7-5 record and the championship. After the tourney BHS went on to win six of the remaining nine games, then went into the Sectional with 13 victories and eight losses under their belts.

The team was 4-3 in CIC action, which was good enough to capture fourth place in the conference. Victories were over Wabash, Elwood, Burris and Tipton.

Leading the scoring was Gregg Slentz, who ripped the nets for an average of 13.7 points per game. Jeff Perry and Ken Hunter were the top rebounders. Perry was also the best free throw shooter, as he hit 79% from the line. Sophomore Phil Payne was the leading shooter from the floor, hitting 46% of his shots.

Roundballers cop pair of championships

After looking erratic during the early part of the season, the Bruins were a completely different team in the January Grant County Tourney. They entered the tourney as underdogs and were not expected to last the opening rounds. They appeared to be living up to this billing, as they found themselves 17 points behind in the game with Eastbrook. Then suddenly the team came alive and started a comeback which would bring them from this almost hopeless deficit to win after three overtimes. The semifinal game against Oak Hill also turned out to be a thriller, with BHS winning 68-67. In the championship game the Bruins played their best game against the tourney favorite, Madison-Grant, winning the championship, 59-54.

The Bruins had little trouble with any Sectional foes, as they recorded the fourth championship in five years. The toughest contest was the first, with the Dunkirk Speedcats, who brought an impressive 12-4 record into the tourney. A tenacious defense held the high-scoring Speedcat guard, Kim Younkin, to only four points in the contest, as the Bruins controlled the game from the beginning to end. Victory margins of over 20 points marked the semi-final and final games against Albany and Bryant, respectively, as the team coasted to the championship.

The Regional found BHS paired against top-ranked and previously unbeaten Anderson. The much taller foes were too much for the Bruins. The Indians pressed and fast-broke their way to a 68-47 victory.

JV won 11; Johnson led Frosh

The Junior Varsity team of Coach Ross Myers recorded 11 wins and eight losses. Many of their games went down to the wire, as no fewer than 10 contests were won or lost by four points or less.

Characteristic of the Cubs was balanced scoring, as Coach Myers shuffled his line-up freely. Leading the way were sophomores Tom Nottingham and Rob Robbins, freshman Mark Brown, and Junior Larry Stover. Juniors Lawrence Cook and Jim Kline also logged some playing time in order to keep their playing skills sharp, as they saw limited action on the varsity.

The Frosh "A" squad of Coach Mike Cooper ended its season with a record of five wins and eight losses. They got off to a good start as they won their first three contests, but ended on a dismal note as they were victorious in only two of 10 remaining games.

Leading the scoring for the Teddybears was Bill Johnson with an 18-point average. Following in a balanced attack were Bob Dodds, Rick Bargerhuff, and Greg Kinder with averages of nine, eight, and seven points, respectively.

The "B" squad had a record of four wins and seven losses. Exciting games were against Bluffton and Muncie South as the team won by one point on both occasions.

Wrestlers grappled to best season ever

Blackford wrestlers, with a five-win, three-loss, one-tie record, pulled out the best season ever for Coach Steve Jeffrey.

The Bruin grapplers had two men going into Regional competition this year. Kim Hardley (145-pound class) finished second in the Regional, Mike Ehlers also competed in the Regional, and Mike was also ranked second in CIC.

Blackford went into a Regional of 32 teams and pulled 14th in final competition. Bruin grapplers also did a creditable job in Sectional competition, placing third out of nine teams.

In junior varsity action, Coach Jeffrey felt there was much improvement this year. The reserves also won the Wes-Del Reserve Tourney. Coach Jeffrey believes they had a successful season with a winning record, good Regional and Sectional action, and individual effort.

Record-setting Crabtree 6th in state

Gary Crabtree capped his final year of diving for the Bruin swim team with a sixth place showing in the state meet after winning the Sectional crown. Crabtree also set pool records at three schools besides the BHS record.

Bruin tankers, under the direction of first-year mentor Marty Wilson, posted a 2-12 record while breaking two records. Brent Collins swam to a 6:04 clocking in the new 500 freestyle, and Crabtree broke his own diving record with 262 points, finishing 14-1.

Brian Everhart led scoring with 158 points. Rex Mann came within two-tenths of a second of a 50-free record.

3 gymnasts placed in State Meet

Blackford Bruin gymnasts ended their most productive season in a three-year history, with a 5-5 record. The Bruins also had three men qualify and place in the state meet, although Coach Steve Gale labeled this season as another "building year," Blackford enjoyed statewide recognition for gymnastics prowess.

The Gale guys had six men place in the top ten in the Sectional — Byron Kaiser, frist on the side horse; Mark Byall, third on the trampoline; Bill Logan, third in vaulting; Tom Gavin, eighth on the long horse; Tom Cochran, ninth on the trampoline; and freshman Brian Davis, tenth on the side horse. Logan also took fifth overall.

Kaiser took the top Bruin spot at the state meet with a sixth-place on the side horse. Logan captured a seventh in vaulting, and Byall was 12th on the trampoline. Bruin gymnasts took 11th place among more than 20 teams participating.

The Bruin roster was composed mostly of underclassmen, as they had only three seniors — Bruce Rees, rings; Cochran, trampoline, and Gavin, who was also captain, in the long horse and free exercise.

Twibell's shutout won Sectional crown

Psychology as well as skill played a role in the success of the winning '74 baseball squad. Self-confidence, encouraged by new Coach Craig Moore, paid off. The confident Bruins were 18-5 in the pre-sectional season, then blanked Bryant in the finale to win the Sectional.

After a so-so beginning, the Bruins began a period of consistent improvement, posting wins over teams from such larger schools as Marion, New Castle and Kokomo Haworth. They reached their pinnacle against Madison-Grant just before the Sectional, playing errorless ball. They then also played without error for all three Sectional victories. InRegional play the Bruins defeated Alexandria 9-4 but lost to Anderson 7-14 in the final.

Top hitters included LeRoy Robbins, batting .500; Steve Rinker, .425, and Rick Twibell, .380. Leading pitchers Twibell and Bud Brown had records of 8-3 and 9-0, respectively, by Regional time.

Ted Cain led the JV squad in hitting through a 10-1 season which scored consistently in double figures. The Frosh also posted a winning record, totalling 4-1-1.

Six tracksters set new records

Tracksters of Coach Mark Crain and Assistant Steve Jeffrey compiled a record of 11 wins, six losses, and one tie. In dual meets, the season was even better, 5-1. Taking second place in the conference and hosting the first Blackford Invitational were highlights of the season.

BHS qualified three for regional action — Larry Horton in shot put, Dan Kilty in the discus, and Jeff Perry in the 220. The Blackford Invitational was probably the most disappointing season loss. The Bruins won both relays, but this was not quite enough, as they lost the championship to Yorktown by a single point.

The team had a number of individual standouts, as a total of six new records were set. Leading was sophomore Larry Horton, with a record-setting throw of 49-6½ in the shot put and a school and conference record in the discus with 141.8½. Other record breakers were Jeff Perry in the 220 yard dash, with a time of 22.4; Gary Crabtree, 13-0 in pole vault; Lawrence Cook, 52.45 in the 440, and Rod Meyers in the long jump with 20-2½.

Vet golfers posted winning season

Coach Ross Myers, Bruin linksmen, led by seniors Paul Kemps and Dave Coons, had a winning season record of 8-5, losing three meets by one stroke and finishing third in the CIC, behind Huntington and Alexandria.

This year's varsity was composed of five lettermen — Paul Kemps, Kevin and Eric Johnson, Dave Coons and Bruce Rees. They started out slowly by losing two of their first three meets before showing the form that gave them a winning record.

The JV's did not fare quite so well, winning two of six meets. They came on strong in the middle of the season after a shaky start, then tapered off. The team was led by freshmen Chris Fread and Dave Maddox. Both played some varsity and showed ability to play good golf during meets.

Low individual scores by the end of the school year were Paul Kemps, 36 for nine holes, and Dave Coons, 77 for 18.

Rob Robbins led "young" racketmen

What kind of season would you expect if you had no returning letterman, no one with any previous varsity experience, and no seniors on the varsity squad? This is the situation Tennis Coach Jerry Shreves was faced with last year. His team finished with a record of one win and 12 losses.

Though the record may not show it, the young Bruins showed an amazing amount of improvement from beginning to end of their season. Number-one racketman Rob Robbins played his finest tennis at the Sectional Tournament, where he gave the number-two seeded singles player a good match though he met defeat, 6-4, 6-3.

In conference matches BHS recorded one win against six losses. The lone victory came at the hands of Alexandria by the score of 4-3.

Sectional, Regional first for school

Girls' Athletic Association took new steps for Blackford by hosting the IHSAA Sectional and Regional for girls' gymnastics, a first for girls' sports here.

Girls' gymnastics and volleyball were both young teams. The volleyball team won three and lost three. Patty Smith, Cindy Rains, and Anita Cimino were among strong players. The gymnastics team had its first full win over Bluffton and came in second or third in other meets. Candy Runyon and Beth McDaniel were listed as outstanding gymnasts.

The basketball team finished the season with a four-win, four-loss Varsity record. A three-win, four-loss record was compiled by the Junior Varsity.

Decorator and animal candles were sold by GAA members, the money to be used for new track uniforms. A banquet honoring the teams was held in April, closing the season for GAA.

Surrounded by her opponents from Cowan, Bruinette Patty Cain makes a vigorous effort to free herself in a GAA basketball game.

Students, teachers joined in recreation

Several non organized sports activities provided athletic training for students and teachers.

The annual intramural season gave many students a chance to test their skills in league play. Teams 1 and 7 fought to a tie in the Red League with records of 5-1, while Team 4 of the White League captured its division with a 6-0 mark. High scorer for both leagues was Gib Worley with a 36-point average for the season.

Physical Education classes also added to a well-rounded sports program. Such activities as swimming, archery, football, and basketball were offered.

Faculty members were not forgotten, as they took part in several sports other than evening swimming. The Harlem Diplomats were the biggest challenge the tutors faced, but such things as a pep session tug-of-war also added to their work.

Evening classes in P.E. instructed by Mr. Welge gave many adults in the community a chance to get in shape. Tennis and basketball facilities were also available for public use. Even the more leisurely activity of "pedal pushing" appeared at BHS, as bicyclists took advantage of its wide open spaces.

Three teams tied for the Intramural Basketball Championship. They cheered Bruins to victory Bruin teams were told to "Keep on truckin' " by the Boys and Girls Cheerblocks, cheerleaders and members of the Booster Club.

Helping in spirit building, Booster Club members made signs for all sports and decorated the school for the basketball Sectional.

During the summer, cheerleaders attended the Vincennes Cheerleading Camp, where they picked up new cheers and chants. Varsity leaders also won ribbons — two excellent, three superior, and one outstanding. They also received the spirit stick for two days, while the JV added two excellent, two outstanding, and two honorable mention ribbons.

Freshman leaders Jennie Barkdull, Laurie Rea, Pam Bonham, and Terri Robbins led frosh spirit through winning seasons.

To boost sectional spirit, senior Dan Kilty prepares a sign which will be used to decorate the halls to arouse spirit.

Tense moments are experienced by members of the Boys and Girls Cheerblocks during Bruin play in the Sectional basketball tournament.

As Sectional tension mounts, Pep Club President Pam Hogan bubbles with enthusiasm.

Tuning into the outside world, seniors sought to find answers and companionship to perform successfully in endless struggles. Continued education, jobs, and marriage were challenges rising to meet the Class of '74.

Yet tuned in to memories behind them, seniors thought of the Prom, the wait for class rings, participation in State football finals, and the realization of a 10.1 grade average.

Constructing the "unique" Homecoming float was a first for the class and BHS. Matthias Teipel, foreign exchange student, arrived from Germany to add to the senior population and to balance the loss of Ken Jones, who exchanged homes for the year with Matthias.

However, upon donning caps and gowns, the Class of '74 concluded their high school days and "really tuned into the world."

Future plans entered their minds

Looking forward to being seniors was a prospect of juniors throughout the year.

Money made from last year's magazine sale financed this year's Junior-Senior Prom. "Colour my World" was chosen by the Junior Class as the theme. Geometric designs and colored lights were planned for the major decorations. Controversy once again became a part of the Prom. The question of opening the prom to sophomores became a major issue. The final decision to keep the Prom as it has been in recent years was determined by a class vote.

Brains were drained during the three hour long SAT test in April. The SAT is used to determine the predicted success of the student in doing college-level work. The PSAT was given Oct. 27 as a preview as to what would be on the SAT.

Making decisions about the future became a major task for juniors. Going to college and determining which to attend became a major decision. Not attending college but getting a job was a difficult decision for some. Hoping for jobs to earn money to help pay college expenses was on the minds of juniors who were college hopefuls.

Arousing spirit at pep sessions became important for the class. Winning the spirit stick several times proved juniors to have spirit. Juniors also showed their strength by winning all tug-of-war contests during the homecoming football pep session. Teachers then challenged the juniors to a tug-of-war during the regional basketball pep session. But the invincible juniors came out on top, winning the pull.

Getting the prom to be just right for everyone was the main idea for sponsors Mr. John Sheets, Mr. John Adams and Mr. Heiser.

A break between Prom meetings was enjoyed by the Junior Class officers Bob Beymer, vice-president; Jan Garrett, treasurer; Paula Holloway, secretary; and Mark Dudgeon, president — pedaling their troubles away.

JUNIOR 1st SEMESTER "A" HONOR STUDENTS: Carolyn Hopkins, Dianne Carder, Jane Ann Chaney, and Martha Beymer. (These four are the only students who reported for the picture).

Various expressions are shown on the faces of a select group of the Junior class competing in a tug-of-war against teachers of BHS during the Regional pep session. Pulling to a victory, proved Juniors have power to spare.

The 1973-74 Sophomore Class got a slow start in its magazine sales but soon took off with a bang for a total of $8,186.56, breaking the previous record set by last year's Sophomore Class. High salesmen in the magazine drive were Mike Pickering and Keith Milholland.

Class rings and school rings also played a major part in the role of sophomores. Anxious sophs lined the halls ordering their rings in the fall and receiving them in February.

After a fast-paced year of school, sophomores planned to relax at a class party at the close of the school year.

Asking questions as well as answering them became daily routine for freshmen, as Sherry Cain illustrates in English class. Being new brought many questions from Frosh.

Frosh learned early to participate

Three hundred and eight freshmen entered the halls in September, unaware, as usual, about their new environment. But in a few weeks they had grown accustomed to faces of upperclassmen and knew the shortcuts to classes.

The fifth Freshman Class rapidly became involved, constructing a class float for homecoming and joining in fall and winter sports. To back their teams, the freshmen chose four girls after tryouts to be their official cheerleaders.

Winning the spirit stick highlighted the year. Yelling louder than upperclassmen despite some changing voices was achieved by the vocal frosh.

But confusion entered freshman lives almost daily. Crowded halls, lunch lines, and late buses didn't help. By May, however, the timid frosh were no longer timid. They were ready to graduate from Teddybear status to full fledged Bruins.

MR. KENNETH KLINE, B.A.: Supervisor of Special Services.

MR. WILLIAM PAYNE, B.S., M.S.: Assistant Superintendent of Education.

DR. MAX GLENN, A.B., M.S., Ed.D: Superintendent of Blackford County School System.

With necessary emphasis on the energy crisis, the school board and the administrators found it essential to reduce room temperatures and gasoline consumption. School bus drivers left buses at school during the day and pooled their cars for returning home, to conserve fuel.

Choosing people to fill in after resignations was also an important task. Besides the teacher and bus driver jobs to be filled, the positions of superintendent and a vacant school board opening had to be filled. Dr. Max Glenn replaced Dr. Conrad Galloway after his resignation as superintendent of the Blackford County School system. Mrs. Lucille Reidy resigned from her position on the school board, and Mr. Robert Bales was chosen to replace her. Mr. Kenneth Kline was chosen to be the new supervisor of special services.

Leading the Way

Influential 'Heads'

Supporting students and their activities, Mr. G. William Anderson, principal, and Mr. John Carbone, athletic director, view Bruin basketball action in Sectional tourney.

"Leading the way" for students and faculty was a new administrator this year. Mr. G. William Anderson, principal, came to BHS from North Newton after Mr. Phillip McDaniel's resignation. Becoming acquainted with the school and the community was one of the greatest challenges of his position, Mr. Anderson said. Mr. Anderson also initiated several minor changes.

Among Assistant Principal Noel Lewis's many responsibilities were preparing and publicizing all daily announcements, supervising extra-curricular activities, and directing summer school.

Preparing athletic schedules, selling tickets, and supervising games required many hours for Mr. John Carbone, athletic director. Among other duties, he served on the Board of Directors for Indiana High School sports and as secretary for the Central Indiana Athletic Conference.

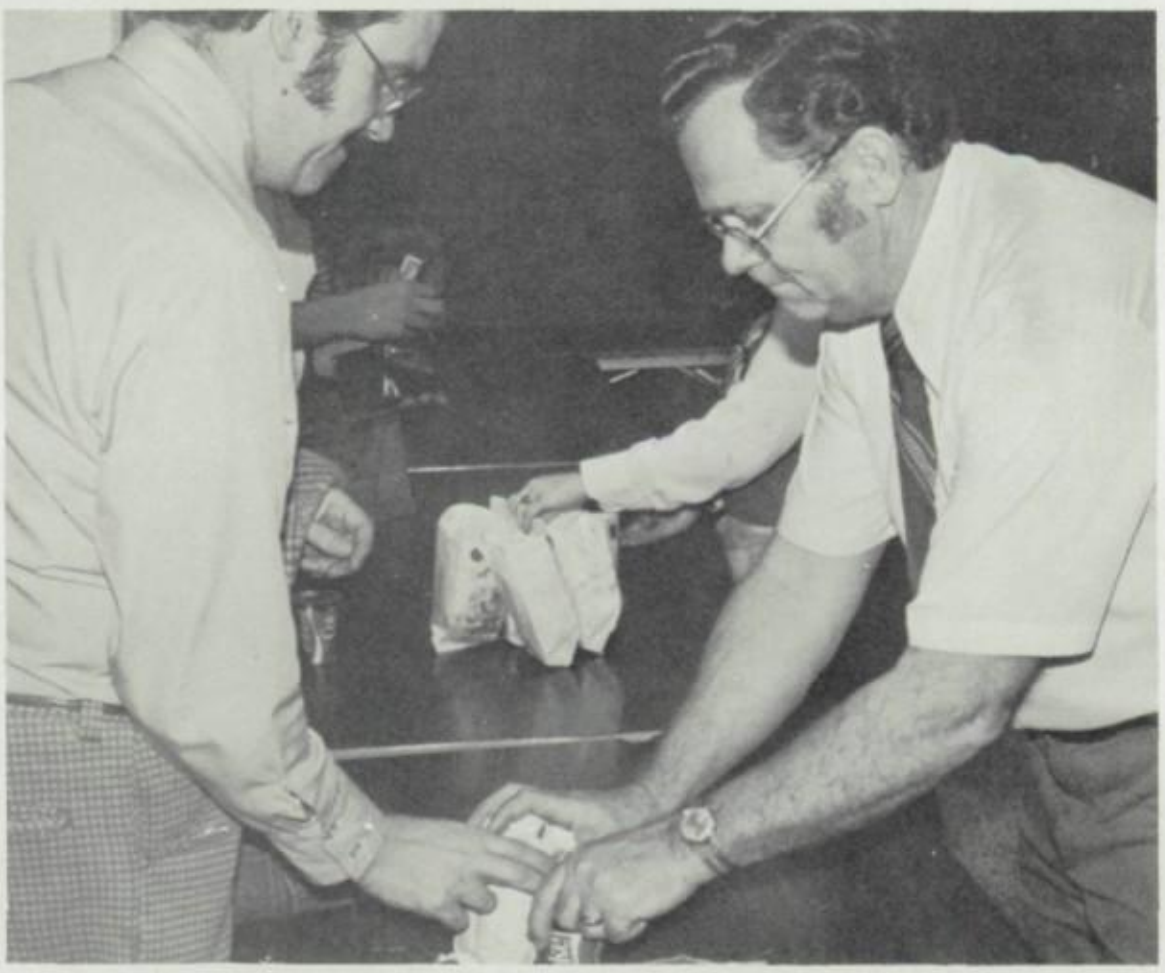
Taking major responsibility for the development of positive attitudes in the school was the most challenging task for the deans — Mrs. Gretchen Place and Mr. Kenneth Ross. Mr. Ross supervised concessions, cafeteria, and student parking, while Mrs. Place became actively involved in the Hospital Auxiliary. Summer days found Mrs. Place enjoying the game of golf.

MR. G. WILLIAM ANDERSON, A.B., M.A.: Principal.

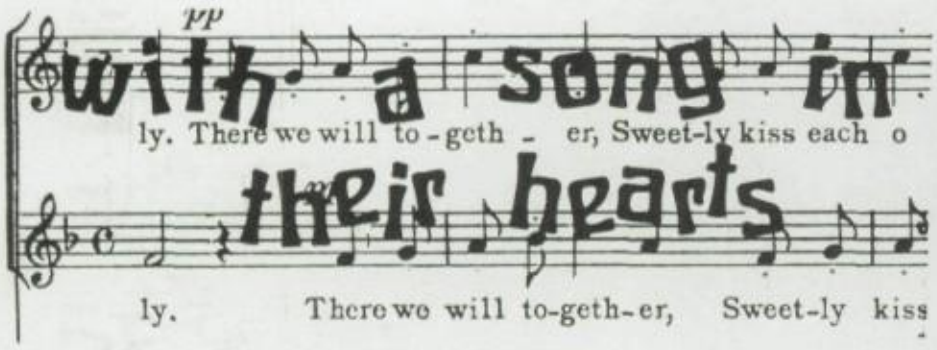
A visitor's pass is issued to Mrs. Yvonne Boyd at the county hospital by Mrs. Place, a Hospital Auxiliary member, as her contribution to the community.

Concession workers were assisted in serving basketball fans by Mr. Ross.

Announcing events at Montpelier annual fall Jamboree was among community services contributed by Asst. Principal Lewis.



MR. NOEL LEWIS, B.S., M.A., Assistant Principal; MR. JOHN CARBONE, B.S., M.S.: Athletic Director; MRS. GRETCHEN PLACE, B.S., M.S.: Dean of Girls; MR. KENNETH ROSS, B.S., M.A.: Dean of Boys.



Instructors unveiled musical talents

They may not have sung their way into the hearts of millions, but the BHS tutors did show the student body a side of their personalities rarely seen.

On several occasions teachers teamed up to bring musical entertainment to students, parents, and other faculty members. The fall choral concert was one such occasion. Ms. Debi Carnifix, Mr. John Adams, Mr. Bob Cromer, and Mrs. Beverly Pugh all added to the festivities with various solos. Teachers also provided entertainment at a fall faculty party as a quartet of male vocalists serenaded the group.

While some sang, others showed their musical skills in differing ways. For example, while his fellow educators were more boisterous, Mr. Fred Hartzell, woods teacher, was creating a dulcimer and a clavichord.

Bellowing out orders as the "Captain of the Pinafore," Mr. John Adams, art teacher, performs at the fall Choral concert.

Teachers relished their home life

Blackford's 70 teachers and administrators were basically homebodies. When time came to sign out for the day, they headed eagerly for homes which ranged from Kokomo to Pennville, from Warren to Muncie.

Most had someone waiting to greet them with "Hi, Daddy" or "Hello, Mama." Others, with more recently acquired partners, got more romantic welcomes. Three married couples didn't have to go home to see their spouses — they taught here, too.

Four teachers — two men and two women — were still looking for the right marital merchandise. But eventually practically all teachers marry — and most of those at BHS are helping to produce their next generation of students. In this respect, they're quite normal: Sixty-five teachers who are either married or have been have 100 kids — averaging a little under the acceptable two per family.

be it ever so humble

One teacher became a June bride. The former Miss Joan Southerton became Mrs. Steven Metz at St. John's Lutheran Church in Indianapolis.

The farm was home for many teachers at this rural school, including Mr. and Mrs. Jon Stroup, who portray the rural pioneer spirit of artist Grant Wood's American Gothic (upper left). The Stroups spent their spare time this year in remodeling the home on their newly purchased farm. English teacher Sandy (upper right) took care of the livestock, while Coach Jon drafted the help of their two sons (lower right) to make the farm pay off.

Teachers were personal helpers, too

Although the life of a teacher had the diversity of most adult lives, the instructors' professional success, as always, depended largely upon relationships with many students — an average ratio of one teacher to 100 students met daily.

Classroom relationships remained mostly traditional. Although seven new classes were added, and new ideas in procedure and curriculum were discussed in a series of departmental meetings, radically new curricular methods were still mostly in the study stage.

BHS teachers, however, continued to have a closer relationship with students than teachers in most larger schools. They voluntarily stayed after hours to straighten out confused students. They sponsored 31 extracurricular groups. They made out and graded assignments of absentees who were either ill or vacationing. And they advised students informally and personally about such problems as college, careers and romance. Students often showed their appreciation — at Christmas, dinners, or other occasions.

The generation gap between students and teachers grew narrower in 1973-74.

Secretaries assist 1200

EXCELLENT SERVICE PERSONNEL

"I need 200 of these questionnaires for tomorrow."
"Would you have these typed by this afternoon?"
"Could you tell me where Room 232 is?"
"Please, place an order for these supplies as soon as possible."
"Hello, I'm visiting today."
"May I leave a message?"

These and many more demands made a full work day for the secretaries as they assisted the faculty and student body. Conservation of paper especially played an important part in the secretaries' daily work this year. Because of the shortage, they attempted to "squeeze" as much copy as possible onto a single sheet of paper and trimmed large excess amounts from used sheets. However, although they had busy, industrious days, the secretaries found time for a "good luck" wish to the Bruins.

Routine school days for Mrs. Penny Boxell, teachers' aide (above), includes distributing the mail to the proper teacher's box. However, all the secretaries (right) take time from their work to wish the Bruins "good luck."

Another school day begins as Mrs. Frances Johnson, switchboard operator (upper left), unlocks the general office door to faculty and students. Later, Mrs. Virginia Vincent, principal's secretary (center left), substitutes on the morning announcements. In the library, Mrs. Shirley Frazier, library secretary (upper center), prepares research information. As the day continues, A-V manager and secretary, Mrs. Venita Banter (middle center), can be found assisting teachers with aids from films to paper for their bulletin boards. Meanwhile, (upper right), Mrs. Anna Cook, bookstore manager and bookkeeper, takes time to stamp books. Receptionist and secretary, Mrs. Mary Jane Landis (center right), spends her days near the basketball season selling season tickets to Corinne Kaiser and other students. On the days beginning a new grading period, Mrs. Gladys Sanders, Guidance secretary (above), is found checking report cards, like Susan Dorton's, for the honor roll.

Affected by the energy crisis and inflation, custodians, cooks, and bus drivers "pooled" and "cooked" together.

Lowering thermostats to cooperate with President Nixon's cutback requests, custodians became frequent recipients of cold-room complaints. However, the paper shortage did not reduce the amount of litter to be swept up daily.

Under the supervision of a new head cook, Mrs. Thelma Garrison, cafeteria workers saw necessary price increases. Resulting were more costly student lunches and less produce. Cafeteria personnel organized car pools to overcome energy restraints.

Fuel shortage also prompted bus drivers to form car pools and leave buses at school during the day.

Plowing many lengths of the school parking lot was a job for custodians when snow became a hazard for students and faculty.

Attempting to conserve energy, the bus drivers left their buses to sit idle in the school parking lot during the day.

Santa Claus (otherwise known as Tom Stepp) caught Mrs. Doris Cline, cook, off guard with a "Merry Christmas" hug.

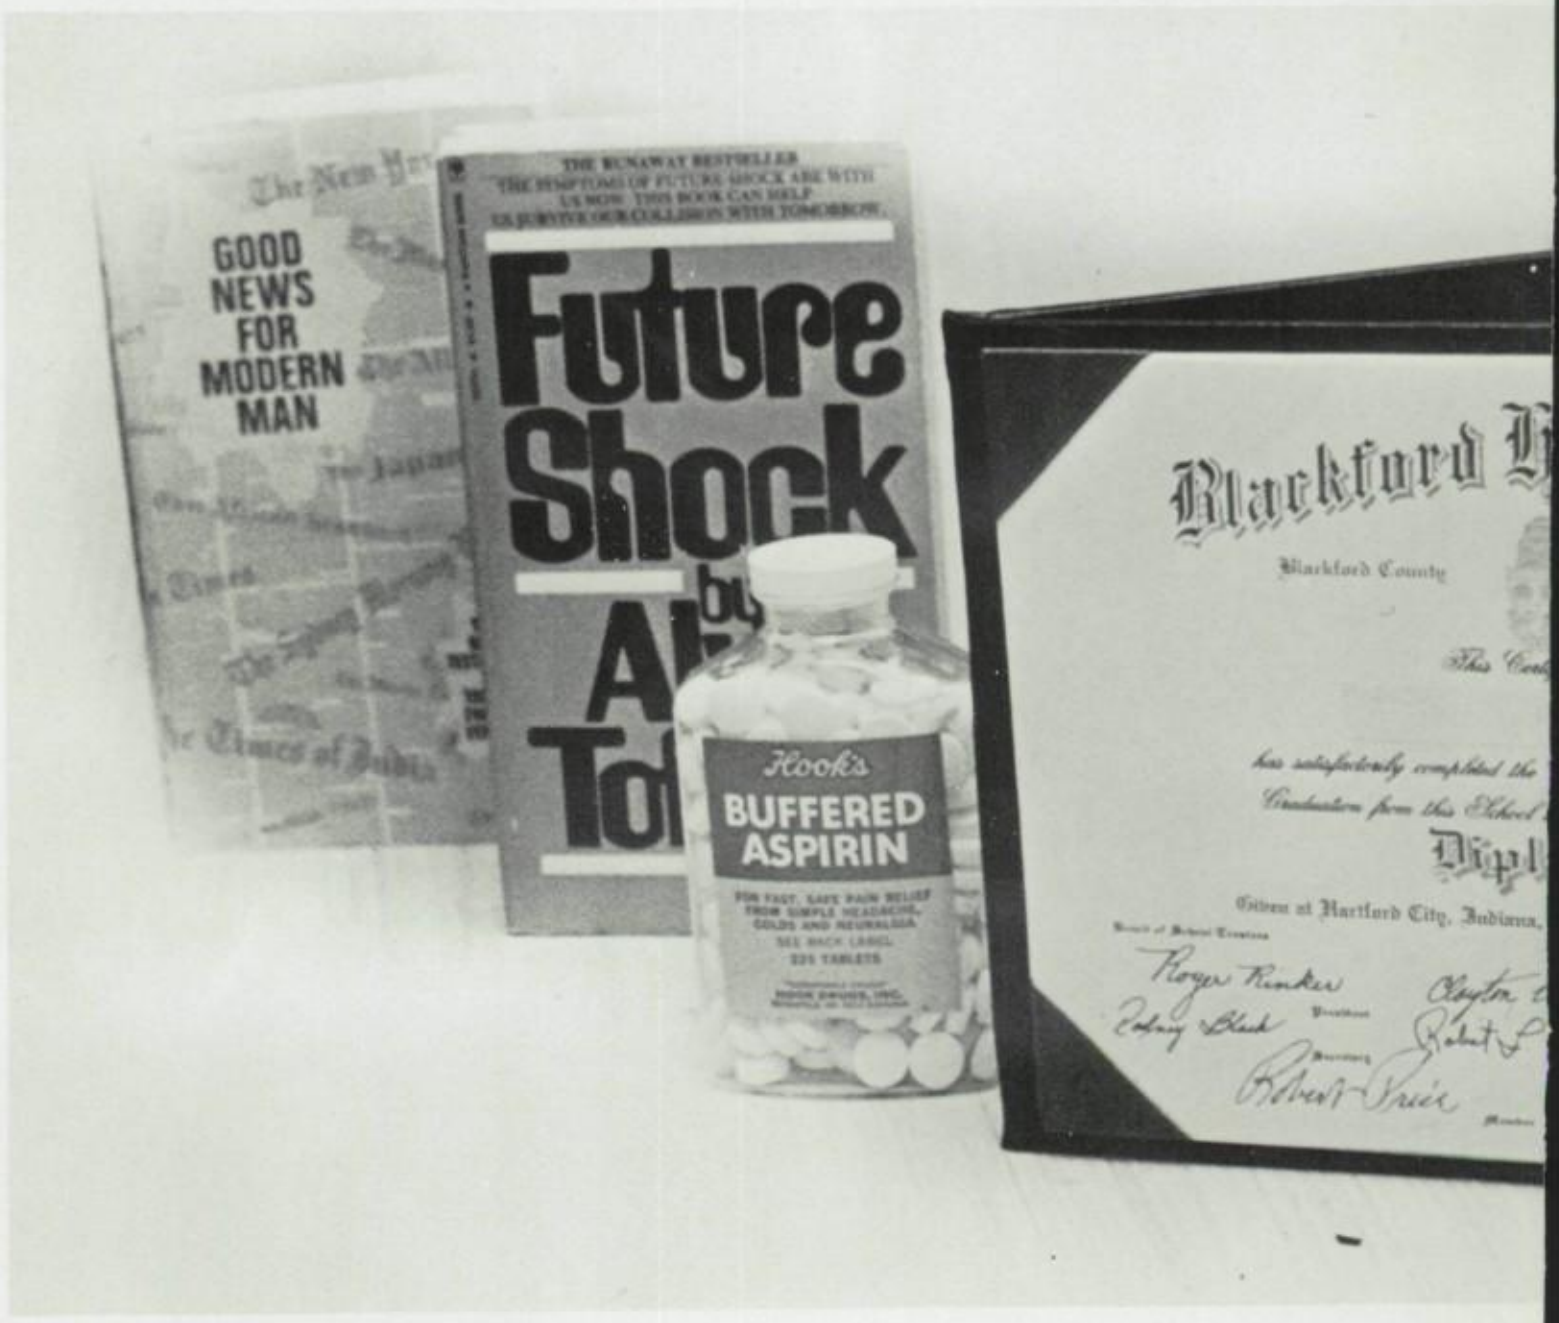
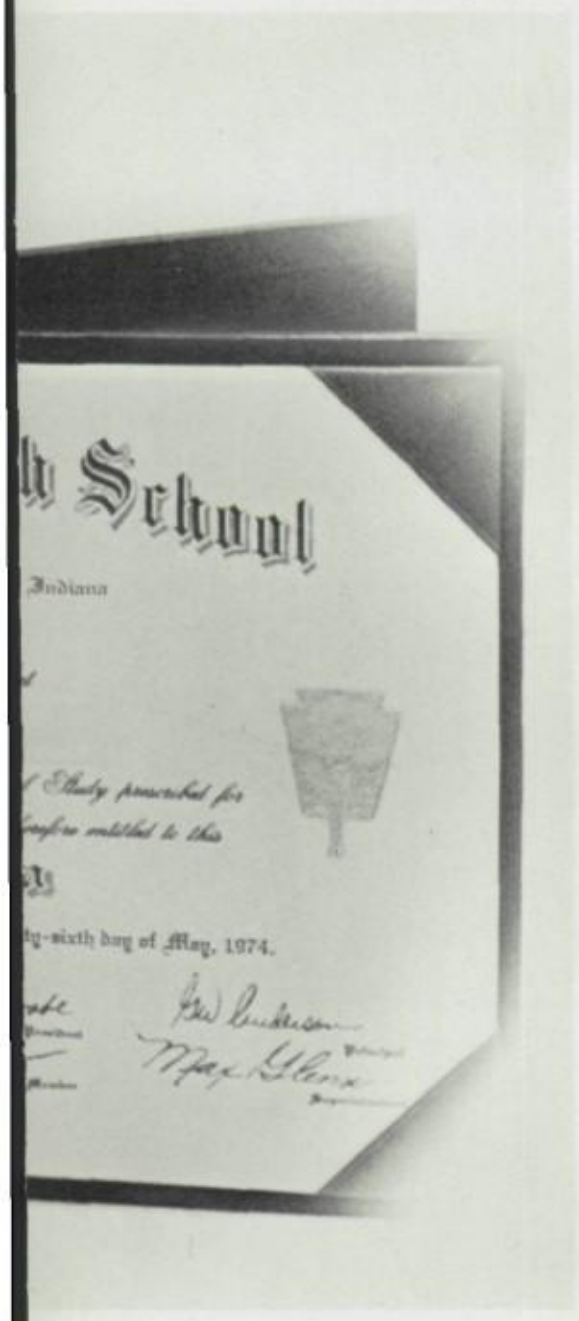
TO CUSHION THE IMPACT...





the little wooden blocks from kindergarten . . .
each little decision that we make becomes an event in our lives.
and each event in balanced precariously against the next as we build we grow. we mature. but we cannot work alone.
just as we start our little towers,
we are splattered with a new reality:
we must not collide with the patterns of society.
all our little blocks
topple to the ground.
we feel pressure and respond emotionally.
we feel the Impact.
but this is just the first of a series of explosions . . .
of first-times
and first-feelings and first-collisions.
as society becomes more complex,
its patterns become more confusing.
the clashes are more frequent and jolting.
this is a year of major traumas:
as individuals we feel the scars of political entanglements, of international disputes.
an individuals we become increasingly aware of being manipulated by the masses, of dictated morality,
of being dehumanized.
our problem now is learning to cope.
to find relief from the shocks.
to discover ways to adjust to adapt our social, mental, physical, and moral selves to the strangeness of the Impact.
